From Day to Day

LOVE'S LADDER.

First time he kissed me, he but only wrote.
The fingers of this hand wherewith I write,
And ever since it grew more clean and white—
Slow to world's greetings, quick with its "Oh, just!"

When the angels speak. The second placed in height,
The first, and caught the forehead,
Half falling on the hair.

The third upon my lips was folded down.
In perfect, purple state; since when, linked.

I have been proud and said:
"My Love, my own."

SOCIAL.

Mrs. Bishopie will be the hostess at the Golf Tea on Thursday, Mrs. Newman, who is now newly established in her new home, 308 McLeod, is receiving tomorrow afternoon.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Mrs. A. Bruce Pusley will receive Thursday next for the first time in a private house where all must sit down. Mrs. B. Hume will receive on Friday, October 23rd, for the first time this season, and afterwards on the fourth Friday of each month.

SOMETHING ABOUT LUNCHEONS.

A woman who entertains to a certain degree, and also attends to many social functions, has this, say of luncheons, which more and more become a favorite mode of entertaining women during the winter season:

Too many guests at a luncheon party, or at any other function in a private house where all must sit down to table, is a mistake. Twelve are not too many if the company comprising the company are congenial in tastes and in the same rank of society.

To bring together the vulgar rich and the refined poor is a fatal blunder. I do not imply, of course, that a majority of the newly rich are vulgar, nor more than I would intimate that most of the many who have not suitable luncheon guests are refined. But you, the hostess, will be more at ease if no plainly attired woman suffers inward mortification from the contrast with the superb costumes of the rest of the party.

It should not be necessary at this time to observe that hats are not removed at a luncheon party. Yet I have in memory sundry incidents that show the expediency of fixing this freak of fashion in the mind of the unsophisticated guest. The hostess and her daughters and the guest whose visit to the house is the occasion of the function are the exceptions to the rule.

Punctuality is absolutely obligatory upon the guests. It is ill-bred to the point of rudeness to be a minute behind the hour named for the luncheon. It is also awkward to anticipate that hour by more than ten minutes. The butler or the parlor maid announces that "luncheon is ready" from the door of the drawing room, addressing the mistress politely, mitte in dumb show than audibly.

The appearance of the man in correct attire, or of the maid, in her neat uniform of black gown, apron and cap, is the signal for a general ringing—the hostess setting the example. She marshals the party in a pleasant, efficient manner, coupling them in she has arranged them in her own mind, bringing up the rear with the poorest of honor.

It is no longer the fashion to have decorated place cards. A simple visiting card with the name of the guest written on it lies at her place.

In decorating the table, avoid strongly perfumed flowers, and if possible carry out a color scheme as well as to give harmonious character to the display. The bougainvillea laid heak the place mat, and accord with the low level of flowers in the middle of the cloth.

If your dining room be well lighted by the natural illumination of day, do not follow a fashion in vogue, introduced by dwellers in closely built blocks, where the blessed sunshine is unknown by the seeing of the eye of one leaves the shade. If the rooms in which you entertain your friends open upon streets and courts you must, perforce, light the luncheon table with candle-lights, counterbalanced by gas or electric burners overhead. Shake all with silk or paper screens, corresponding with your color scheme.

CONSISTENCY.

Girl with the Gibson Girl Neck—The airs that odious Mrs. Nocken gives herself! Have you noticed the absurd fuss she makes over that new grey poodle dog?
Girl with the Julia Marlowe Dimple—Yes, but that isn't the worst of it. She spells his name "Pygmalion."

UPS AND DOWNS OF LIFE.

The spectacle of a popular song-writer fallen upon evil days produced a pathetic impression at Bow Street Police Court, London, the other day. A blind mother, Tom Maguire, with his wife Frances, charged with causing an obstruction. He was well known years ago, and he has written many songs which have secured a great deal of popularity, including those sentimental ballads, "Spare the Old Maid Cabin," "Kathleen Ashore," "Wait Till the Clouds Roll By" and others with a humorous note.

Revere and affection enveloped him, and now, absolutely blind and nearly stone deaf, he lives in Clerkswell, and goes into the street to sell his melodies. Mrs. Maguire, a neatly-dressed little woman in black, had to lead her husband carefully into the dock. A redoubtable constable on the previous evening saw Maguire playing a cornet on the pavement in Russell square. He stopped this, but later Maguire and his wife were on the pavement again selling some books. They were arrested.

A number of songs were handed to the magistrate, Sir Albert de Kington, which Maguire proudly acknowledged having written twenty years ago. He was famous then," he added, "but now I'm in the gutter." He further stated that if he only had a decent instrument he could probably get his living in the music halls. Maguire and his wife were discharged, and the old composer was led gently out of court.

Fight Over C. P. R. Water Rates.

Brandon, Oct. 22.—A long drawn-out discussion in the city council with regard to what rate should be charged the C. P. R. for city water was not ended last night, when the rate was fixed at 7 cents per thousand gallons up to 150,000 per day, and that the excess of that amount will be charged for at six and a half cents per thousand.

The argument lasted four hours, and was of the warmest description. More than one alternem challenged another to step outside and engage in a fistie encounter. It remains to be seen whether the C. P. R. will accept this rate or instill a pawning plant of its own. The opposing factions were desirous of giving water at six and a half cents instead of seven cents as formerly passed by the council, but former absentees being present last night, refused to ratify the agreement, and the rate was raised.

If you demand nothing more than clean, cool clothes handed up a little, and a soft iron run over them it makes but little difference where you send your clothes. But if on the other hand, you want the dirt taken out either by dry cleaning or steam cleaning and then pressed right by people who know how you should certainly send them here or let us call for them if you telephone 328.

We do dry clean, and I have something to say about that later on.

"STAND PAT."

A fall has occurred in the negotiations looking toward the sale of the Edmonton street railway franchise, pending, it is understood, a definite offer from the gentleman who opened the negotiations. Meantime the city commissioners will ask the city council for power to negotiate for the Strathcona street railway franchise. This move broadens the street railway question from that of the Edmonton system alone to the general situation in relation to both cities; and the circumstances under which the question is handled invite the attention of the ratepayers of both.

On the face of things the proposal to purchase the Strathcona franchise at this stage of the game looks decidedly suspicious. If Edmonton were in a position to exercise its own franchise forthwith there might be good reason for endeavoring also to secure the Strathcona franchise. But when the inability of Edmonton to exercise its franchise is being urged as a reason for selling the Strathcona franchise, it is tantamount to the admission that a proposition should be made for Edmonton to secure the Strathcona franchise. If we cannot construct a street railway in Edmonton how could we undertake to construct a system for both cities? And when we are unable to complete our system it is urged as a reason why we should sell the Strathcona franchise, it is tantamount to a proposal to jump both franchises and turn them over to a corporation.

It is argued, and correctly argued, that the interurban traffic would be the most valuable traffic for a local electric road; that electric road system connecting the two cities might be operated at advantage, sooner than a system confined to the limits of either. It is also argued equally correctly that if separate systems were installed they might fall under hostile or unsympathetic management, and the traffic between the two cities made unnecessarily expensive and inconvenient; that, for example, an Edmonton man might be required to fare by the Edmonton system for carrying him half way to Strathcona, and another fare by the Strathcona system for taking him the other half way. There is reason in both arguments and if they were advanced as reasons why the two cities should unite in constructing and operating one system of street railway connecting and traversing the cities the arguments would be conclusive. But advanced as reasons why the two franchises should be turned over to a corporation the arguments are bad, for the excellent reason that corporation ownership of street railways is bad.

No one will dispute the desirability of having the interurban traffic handled as though the two cities were one; no one will dispute that it would be better done if the cities were connected and served by one system instead of two and no one will question that the establishment of a system in one city under private ownership would be a degree disadvantageous to the other city. But back of these considerations lies the real point in the street railway situation—that the proper and prudent way to "handle" the street railway situation here as elsewhere in Western Canada is to refuse to "handle" it at all at this stage of the game. This is the position the Bulletin believes Edmonton should take, and without presuming to advise Strathcona as to the Strathcona's affairs should be conducted, it is the course the Bulletin believes should best conserve the interests of the ratepayers of both cities as well.

Under the abnormal financial conditions of today neither Edmonton nor Strathcona is in position to exercise its street railway franchise at once or to sell that franchise at face value or anything approaching face value. The course of ordinary business procedure is then surely to simply hold the franchises, waiting until a betterment of the money market will enable the cities either to use the franchises themselves or to sell them for something more nearly their value than can be got for them today. This is the course which is being pursued by the business men of both cities in their private affairs, and a rule which is considered and proven good in private affairs should be equally good in affairs of the community.

Supposing a company of business men held the franchises for either Edmonton or Strathcona, would they offer that franchise for sale at the present time? Certainly not, unless financial pressure forced them to do so. A valuable possession for far less than it was worth. Why then should not the cities exercise the same spirit of patient foresight which characterizes their business men? Neither city is as prebend financially that its franchise must be sacrificed, yet if a franchise is sold under the present conditions of the money market, it must be sacrificed, and if sacrificed the small returns received for it would make no considerable betterment in the financial situation. The course of prudence and sound sense is for the ratepayers to "stand pat" and hold their franchises until the weather clears.

SPENDING MONEY.

Nanapa's revenue estimates are being afforded visible tangible evidence that a block of debentures have been sold. The line in year of lots fronting on the west side of the avenue is being reduced to the level of the adjacent territory and the conclusion provided for one of the wonder works of the season. Early in the summer the surface of the avenue was removed and hauled into the lane fronting on the west side. It was found that the earth thrown in the lane had blocked the gutters and the garbage cans were not gettable. This worthy official of course did not paid to do road-work and did not propose doing what he was not supposed to do. He communicated with the city hall and each resident concerned and was favored with a printed extract from the city bylaws prescribing work in a state of blockade. The notices do not appear to have produced any remarkable activity on the part of the recipients and the distressed official did not paid to do road-work and did not propose doing what he was not supposed to do. ## A HOT CAMPAIGN BY THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

To Restrict the Power of the House of Lords—The Coming Program—Upper and Lower Houses in Conflict.

London, October 22.—The Liberal campaign for the restriction of the power of the House of Lords to alter or reject bills passed by the House of Commons, which was opened by the premier, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, at Edinburgh, is now in full swing throughout the country. Members of the Cabinet are addressing meetings almost daily, the keynote of the speeches being the government's complaint of the treatment of measures which it considered of the first importance by the upper house. That House, it is said, will not allow the House of Commons to do its duty, and the House of Commons will not allow the House of Lords to do its duty. ## STEMMING THE FLOOD.

Fewer American Publications Coming Into Canada Now.

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—The Postoffice Department reports that as a result of a new agreement to the second-class postal rates between Canada and the United States, which went into effect last spring, the flow of American newspapers and magazines, used mostly as advertising mediums, has practically ceased to come into Canada. Until May last hundreds of tons of such publications were imported, many of the cheaper and poorer class were carried weekly by the Canadian mail service. Since that time, however, not a single copy of any of these publications has been received in Canada.

A large proportion of the better class of United States publications are still coming into Canada are now being carried by the express companies instead of being handled by the post-office as formerly.

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—The bill of particulars for the Japanese damage claim of $15,000, arising out of the Vancouver riots, as submitted to the Secretary of State, is a striking document and contains the following particulars:—It is fifty-four individual claims, the smallest one being for the modest sum of one dollar for a broken pane of glass. In each case a picture of the damage done is attached, showing the window broken or other damage done. The claims are made out in detail, as to individual panes of glass broken, etc., and are each signed by the person who suffered the damage.

CITY COUNCIL MEETING

Edmonton Will Go Into Field With Strathcona Street Railway Co. as a Rival Competitor for That City's Franchise - Edmonton's Proposition For an Inter-urban System-Commissioners Present Report on Question-Action Taken To Bring Matter of City Market to a Head-Routine Business.

The Edmonton city council will meet on the Strathcona disposal of its street railway franchise to a private corporation if it can be prevented, and if Strathcona can be prevented from the operation of an inter-urban system is of mutual advantage to the sister cities. The commissioners presented an extensive report at the regular meeting of the city council Tuesday evening, dealing with the proposal to construct a line in Strathcona as a part of the Edmonton system. The Edmonton system is now in the position of being a competitor with the Strathcona Street Railway Co. for the street railway franchise in the southern city.

The raters of Strathcona on Tuesday night will be asked to approve of the disposal of the street railway franchise to the Strathcona company. On Monday night a public meeting will be held in Strathcona, where the city council will be asked to approve of the disposal of the street railway franchise to the Strathcona company. A representative of the Strathcona company will be present to submit the city's proposals to the city council. In their report, the city commissioners deal in detail with the various questions concerning the original proposition of an inter-urban system.

It is pointed out that when the street railway question was taken up in the spring a preliminary survey was made. The Strathcona company has been held from the outset that an inter-urban system can be made remunerative from its inception. Together with the Strathcona company, the work on the Strathcona connection was discontinued. The financial stringency made itself felt, and in consequence negotiations were held in abeyance. It is generally agreed that independent lines in the two cities, but not being connected, and therefore, there would be difficulty connected with the transference of the inter-urban system to the other.

The report recommended that if Strathcona will give running rights over its streets, the city of Edmonton will undertake to build the line in 1938, the franchise to be non-exclusive. A mile of railway will be constructed for every 3,000 of population in both cities. For instance, as Strathcona has a population of 15,000, six miles of railway will be built, and if Strathcona has a population of 6,000 two miles will be constructed. Edmonton will further agree to acquire the franchise to the Strathcona company.

The report also considers the sale of the city of Edmonton to a private corporation. Should this be done, it is suggested that the city council should dispose of its franchises without consultation with the city council of the other city. This is in order that the two cities be secured of one operating company for the system covering both cities.

There was practically no discussion on the report.

The question of importance which came up at the meeting was that in reference to the establishment of a market in the city of Edmonton, looking toward this end.

The Commissioners.

City Solicitor Bowen advised the council of the dismissal of the C. P. R. suit against the city of Edmonton. The Melchior-Lewis Co. made an appeal for a C. N. R. suit track in their lumber yard in block 10, River lot 16. The proposed appeal would cross Greenwich street. The route was granted under conditions named in connection with the other, including the following:

Short, Crisp and Biggar, representing E. Holmquist, representing the assessment of lots 16, River lot 16, at $7,400. It was stated that the property was listed at something over $5,000. The commissioners reported that the assessment was in conformity with that of adjoining properties, and in consequence the appeal was not allowed.

City Insurance Scheme.

The scheme evolved by the commissioners to undertake the insurance against fire, by the city itself, in order to obviate the exorbitant insurance rates, was elucidated in the following terms:

At present the city is carrying large amounts of fire insurance policies, with independent companies, aggregating a total insurance of $1,811,000, the premiums on which cost the city annually $124,253. The details of these are as follows:

On power house, $250,000, $12,500.00
Engineer's house, 1,000, 22.50
Water tower, 1,200, 22.50
Fire hall, No. 1, 6,000, 30.00
do, with upper, 3,000, 42.50
City hall, 8,000, 72.00
Helmick Building, 5,000, 22.50
City warehouse, 1,500, 34.50
Jewish hospital, 12,000, 60.00
Fire hall, No. 3, 6,000, 30.00
Telephone plant, 1,200, 22.50
Exhibition block, 6,400, 102.00

$1,811,000 $124,253.00

It will be observed that the rate of insurance is in many cases extravagant, and the commissioners would suggest the advisability of the council considering the question of the city undertaking the fire insurance at a lesser cost, by insuring a uniform rate upon all property, and able to fire-risk, the money so provided being deposited in a sinking fund, which might either be deposited in a savings bank or invested in good securities, and be available at any time to recoup fire losses.

This question, brought up at present, as it is advisable to place some insurance upon the telephone exchange, hospital, furniture, and possibly an increased amount upon the city warehouse and material on hand, it appears an opportune time to decide upon a plan. The telephone exchange is now almost complete, and will be taken over from the contractors in a few days, and in the meantime the apparatus is being installed without security against fire loss except the builders' risk upon the building.

There was no report from the committee in which the report of the Edmonton-Calgary and Co. for a non-exclusive inter-urban franchise, was placed. Chairman Smith stated he had been unable to arrange a meeting of the committee. City Medical Health Officer Torms presented a preliminary report on the question of the ever-present evil of the city, and a supplementary report would deal with the subject in detail.

Cold Storage Plant.

Thus, S. Williamson, of the Edmonton Producers Co., applicants in train conversations to construct a cold storage plant in the city, addressed the council, stating that his company was creating a reputation for itself. When the city named the non-exclusive franchise to a company, the company would say at once if they were acceptable. If they were not, the company would immediately look for another location. Mr. Williamson described the manner in which the company had been treated as a human person. He expressed indifference as to whether the city made a proposition or not. He pointed out that in order to increase the population of the city it was necessary to make live cheaper, and this would be made possible by the establishment of a cold storage plant.

The council decided to hold the question over for another week, when the committee appointed to deal with the matter would report.

Street Numbering.

Alfred W. Walker, asked the question, "What system is followed in the city in reference to street numbering?" The city engineer, Mr. J. H. McGlen, stated that the system adopted was known as the "block" system, in which the numbers to each block, this enabled the houses to be so numbered that in the west end the numbers corresponded with the block in the same relation to the east end of the city.

For instance, below Jasper the numbers ran up to 996, and north of Jasper the numbers were from 1000 to 1996. There was some difficulty being experienced in following out the system in the east end of the city, because of the irregularity of the survey, but in the west end the conditions were better adapted to the operation of the system.

C. P. Newell, representing the Methodist church, asked a question in reference to the establishment of a new church in the city. He stated the risk would be increased by the addition. The request was granted.

DETECTIVE MADE CLEVER CAPTURE

Member of Canadian Bureau Traced $12,000 Worth of Gold Dust Stolen in the Yukon.

TANANA, Alaska, October 22.—By the strenuous efforts of the Canadian detective bureau the mystery surrounding the disappearance of 20 pounds of gold dust, valued at over $12,000, from the steamer Seattle No. 3, has been solved up and as a result Victor C. Wright and Arthur B. Quinn are under arrest at Dawson, charged with the theft on Wright's conviction.

The gold disappeared from the steamer Seattle No. 3 on August 7 when on a voyage from Tanana to Dawson, and since then detectives have been engaged on the case under the direction of the head office at Vancouver, the result that the men were arrested at Fairbanks.

It was in the early dawn of August 7 that the watchman on the steamer found the room in which the United States mails were placed had been tampered with. The slate of one of the windows had been broken and the screen torn out, but a casual examination of the mail clerk revealed nothing. It was generally agreed.

Captain Newcomb, however, was able to make a second examination when he found that 20 pounds of gold dust had been extracted and the mail carefully sewn up again. He called a muster of the crew and it was they found that a deck boy named Frederick Wright was missing. The steamer at once turned and went back up the river as far as Victor's vessel camp, which was the last stopping place. The whistle was kept sounding continuously, but no sign of Wright was discovered and the steamer went on to Dawson, where the loss was reported.

Wright Was Confessed.

United States Detective Inspector C. L. Wyland called in the aid of the Canadian Detective Bureau and several attempts were at once put to work. Gradually evidence was collected with extraordinary results. By bit the story was pieced out and Wright and Quinn finally arrested at Fairbanks. Both denied the charge at first, but under the ordeal of the court last week Wright confessed and made a clear confession of the crime, the story of which displays much ingenuity.

According to Wright, it was Quinn who first broached the subject of obtaining the mail room. He told him that he had been in several similar schemes and had always come out right. He pointed glowingly to the fact that he could command a large sum of money which was separated from them only by a thin board, and even if the boy yielded and consented to work with him. The robbery was planned for August 6, but the watchman was unusually active and no opportunity offered. Although Quinn said he was prepared to steal the watchman and hence him overboard. This, however, the young man would not countenance, but the following night the watchman was out of his room and the robbers got out some of the state of the window.

Heaved Gold Overboard.

The mail room was a very tiny affair to carry such a valuable cargo and the men had to dig up the admission from the postmaster, deck on the starboard side. They cut the mail sack open, removed the gold dust and sewed the sack up again. The gold was then placed in another sack and secreted in the mess-room lavatory at the stern of the vessel, which is of the wheel type. A ball of marlin was procured, about 20 feet in all, and the sack was then securely sealed the marlin was tied to it and a life preserver was attached to the other end. Then Quinn got into the lavatory and lowered the sack out of the window between the rudder and the stern wheel. The idea was that the life preserver would keep the sack afloat and the gold would be thrown overboard.

Almost crazy with despair, young Wright claimed to be built a raft out of driftwood using his suspenders for tackle, intending to launch his frail vessel for the long haul in a vain search for the boy. However, he was saved that experience by the appearance of two Indians. To heavier come, Wright and Quinn, who had some gold on hand which he was making the trip down stream and offered the Indians a liberal reward if they could find it. The lad was taken out in the Indians' canoe and there was no trace of the boy and sack at heart the boy came ashore. Then his traces were lost until he came into Fairbanks, evidently the detective named by Quinn, and it was at this place that the detective pointed on the pair.

Both first denied the story, but Wright's explanation was that he felt overboard when clearing the window in the promenade deck through the breaking of some cornice. There was no sign of any broken cornice, however, and Wright was also unable to explain why it was he did not answer the steamer's whistle when he came back up stream and give a whole story away. He offered to lead a party back to Victor's vessel and point out as clearly as he could the spot where the gold was thrown overboard and a steamer was accordingly dispatched to the scene and dragging operations are now being carried on. The pair will be brought before the authorities in a day or two.

Gradually evidence was collected with extraordinary results. By bit the story was pieced out and Wright and Quinn finally arrested at Fairbanks. The sanitary qualities of the Dr. Deimel Underwear are not the result of any medication, secret or otherwise, but entirely due to the fact that in the choice of material and in the manner of manufacture the needs of the skin have received foremost consideration.

By a scientific combination of linen with abassi and a most skillful construction of a porous fabric we have removed the cold feeling of ordinary linen, reduced its great specific weight, increased its protective power, while preserving at the same time the absorbing and drying properties which all linen fabrics possess to the highest degree.

By keeping the skin in a healthy condition

the liability to colds, bronchitis, pneumonia, and many forms of rheumatism is greatly lessened,

so much so that a large number of physicians prescribe the Dr. Deimel Underwear to people who are susceptible to these affections.

Yet above all, the Dr. Deimel Underwear is the underwear for healthy people, who desire to enjoy bodily comfort and cleanliness to a degree not obtainable from woolen or cotton underwear.

WHITCROFT HERE.

Fred Whitcroft of Peterborough arrived in the city last night to assume command of the hockey situation in Edmonton. In talking to a Bulletin representative this morning he stated that he is not sure about Jack Winchester, of Toronto, goal tender, coming here, but that every effort will be made to induce him to come. As to other members of the team, it is a little too early to speak of them.

The Peterborough Examiner in speaking of Whitcroft's departure from Peterborough says:

The announcement that Mr. Fred Whitcroft is leaving the city this week will be regretted by a large circle of friends and acquaintances, but it will not cause much surprise in as much as having jumped into the professional hockey rinks last season, he might be expected to figure in the game this year. He left on Monday morning for Edmonton, Alta., where he will manage the professional team.

Edmonton is to have an all-star team this season and have king out tempting offers to a number of the crack eastern players, others besides Whitcroft having signed for the season. If the other men they are signing are in Whitcroft's class they should have no obstacles in their way. The local player is about as good as ever named the star of the game and demonstrated it in his work for Kenora last year when pitted against the stars of the east and west, he showed them that he was as good as the best and head and shoulders above the majority. His work when compared with that of Alf Smith, Wendell, Tom, Phillips, Albus, and Johnstone, and the other star forwards who took part in the memorable Stanley Cup game, was remarkable and the western critics quickly recognized his ability and pronounced him the greatest goal getter and best stick-handler in the West, which is about all the praise that any hockey player could desire.

Whitcroft has played on no less than four championship teams in the last six years. He was a member of both Peterborough teams, which won the latter intermediate O.H.A. championship, was one of the stars of the Colts when they walked away with the junior title, and last year was with Kenora, the champions of the Manitoba league and for a month the world's champions.

It is a lightning fast skater, stick handle beautifully, has a hard, swift shot and has few equals as rover or sweeper. He will certainly not, wide swath in Edmonton, where he will likely have working with him some of the old team mates of the Kenora Thistles, who will likely be playing further west this season.

Undoubtedly Edmonton is in luck when they can secure a man with the above record for manager, and should have a cracking good team under his management.

AMERICAN OUTDOOR NATIONAL.

New York, Oct. 22.—The greatest baseball season ever known has just closed. A careful compilation of the daily attendance figures, which have been kept ever since the American League expanded last year that 1897 leads other baseball years by more than 300,000. The figures show that the American and National Leagues drew a grand total of 6,318,557 persons. The nearest approach to these figures was in 1926, when 6,262,295 persons witnessed the combined games of the National and American Leagues. These figures are an increase over last year of 417,282. The American League again outdrew National, but Johnson's organization showed a total of 2,328,754, while the National's figures show a grand total of 2,777,783. The American League drew 608,000 more than last year, while the National League shows a decrease of 40,000. ## TALKING CURLING.

The devotees of the "round" game in Edmonton are discussing possibilities for curling next winter. A new rink is in the making, and there is some talk of building one. There are enough curlers in the city to warrant the erection of a curling rink, according to the statement of one of the most enthusiastic of the curlers of the city, and what is required is for a few men to take hold of the project.

An old established game in Edmonton.

World's Roller Skating Record.

San Francisco, Oct. 22.—What is claimed as the world's record for roller skating on a full floor was established at the Coliseum rink. In a five mile race, the man finished first with the time 14:53. The first time ever made on a similar course previous to this was 15:45. Johnson, who was in the race, fell within 90 feet of the finish. He is the holder of the world's record for skating on a banked oval track, his mark for the five miles being 14:57.35.

SPORTING BRIEFS.

In accordance with his offer, made during the championship meeting the past summer, the Prince of Wales has presented a silver challenge cup to the All-England lawn tennis club.

There is a union on foot to form a western Canada professional hockey league for the coming season, in which Calgary, Edmonton, Regina, Winnipeg, St. Paul, and St. Louis will be included.

It is stated in Calgary that the Edmonton Strathcona hockey club has been making overtures to several good players at present residing in Calgary, with a view to getting them to change their residential quarters for the season.

Duncan McLean won the Manitoba intercollegiate individual championship of 1937, and covered himself with glory, by breaking the high jump intercollegiate record of Canada by jumping five feet six inches.

University eight is anxious to have his new crew the Toronto Argonauts. A race may be pulled off after the American officer of 90.

Arthur Ross and Joe Hall the well-known hockey players stated today that they had finally decided to play during the coming season for the Argonauts of Montreal. Ross has also received offers to play with Kenora and the Canadian Stars. The chances of Brandon having a team in the senior league this year are very slim and little interest is being taken in the matter.

The new Westminster Lacrosse club will go after the Maple Cup set year and if they will travel on to England and play there.

Eddie Duggan the jockey, who is, and has been, signed to ride for Henry Payne Walker next season. It is reported that he will receive a salary of $10,000. Duggan has been growing in popularity with the race going during the season, and in many minds has displaced the marvellous Miller.
